Zirconia or Porcelain-fused to metal Crown Consent: Tooth # _____

What is a crown and its benefits?

A crown restores the form and function of a tooth. If a deciduous (baby) tooth has too much dental decay and needs something more cohesive to hold the tooth in place, then a crown should be placed. If the tooth has had any nerve treatment, a crown is often placed afterward. Baby teeth that have had nerve treatment tend to become brittle and are more likely to break if a large filling only is placed.

Esthetic crowns such as Zirconia or Porcelain fused to metal are commonly used even on deciduous (baby) teeth.

Porcelain-fused to metal crowns, though rare, carry a risk of dislodgment of the porcelain facing, leaving behind visible stainless steel. If this occurs, the cost of replacement is the patient's responsibility.

What are my alternatives?

- Stainless steel crowns

As with any dental procedure you can choose not to proceed with care. Of course, that decision has its own set of benefits and risks. The tooth may end up requiring an extraction, or there's a high chance of space loss due to the ongoing cavity or if the tooth is extracted: This usually leads to a need for orthodontics to reposition the permanent teeth.

I, _____ understand that it is my responsibility to notify this office should any unexpected problems occur or if any problems relating to the treatment rendered are experienced. Routine examinations by the dentist are recommended to allow ongoing assessment of the crown-treated tooth.
